

CAMBRIDGE LIBRARY COLLECTION

Books of enduring scholarly value

Printing and Publishing History

The interface between authors and their readers is a fascinating subject in its own right, revealing a great deal about social attitudes, technological progress, aesthetic values, fashionable interests, political positions, economic constraints, and individual personalities. This part of the Cambridge Library Collection reissues classic studies in the area of printing and publishing history that shed light on developments in typography and book design, printing and binding, the rise and fall of publishing houses and periodicals, and the roles of authors and illustrators. It documents the ebb and flow of the book trade supplying a wide range of customers with products from almanacs to novels, bibles to erotica, and poetry to statistics.

A Catalogue of the Library of the Late John, Duke of Roxburghe

The dispersal in 1812 of the library of John Ker, Duke of Roxburghe (1740–1804) was the bibliographical event of the decade and a key moment in ‘bibliomania’. The huge collection contained illuminated medieval manuscripts, incunabula, fifteen books printed by Caxton, and all four Shakespeare folios. The sale, orchestrated by the bookseller and auctioneer Robert Harding Evans (1777–1857), attracted the greatest book collectors and dealers of the day, setting new records. For the first time in British auction history a single book fetched more than £1,000, while the Valdarfer Boccaccio, the first edition of the Decameron, sold for £2,260. Reported in The Times, the sale immediately gained mythological status. Reissued together here are the printed catalogue and its supplement, both annotated by an attendee at the auction who recorded the name of every buyer and the price paid for each book. Ed Potten, Head of Rare Books at Cambridge University Library, has provided a new introduction that places the catalogue in its wider context.

Cambridge University Press has long been a pioneer in the reissuing of out-of-print titles from its own backlist, producing digital reprints of books that are still sought after by scholars and students but could not be reprinted economically using traditional technology. The Cambridge Library Collection extends this activity to a wider range of books which are still of importance to researchers and professionals, either for the source material they contain, or as landmarks in the history of their academic discipline.

Drawing from the world-renowned collections in the Cambridge University Library and other partner libraries, and guided by the advice of experts in each subject area, Cambridge University Press is using state-of-the-art scanning machines in its own Printing House to capture the content of each book selected for inclusion. The files are processed to give a consistently clear, crisp image, and the books finished to the high quality standard for which the Press is recognised around the world. The latest print-on-demand technology ensures that the books will remain available indefinitely, and that orders for single or multiple copies can quickly be supplied.

The Cambridge Library Collection brings back to life books of enduring scholarly value (including out-of-copyright works originally issued by other publishers) across a wide range of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences and in science and technology.

Introduction

Ed Potten, Head of Rare Books, Cambridge University Library

A new era in British book-collecting may be said to start with the Roxburghe sale ... From being the hobby of a scholar or the whim of an eccentric commoner, the collecting of rare books became, once more, as in Harley's and Sunderland's days, the favourite pastime of the wealthy nobleman.¹

The dispersal in 1812 of the library amassed by John Ker, third Duke of Roxburghe (1740–1804), has gone down in history as a defining moment in bibliomania. For the first time at a British auction, books changed hands for more than £1,000, with the crowning glory of the sale, the iconic Valdarfer Boccaccio – the editio princeps of the Decameron – selling for £2,260. The battle for the Boccaccio between George Spencer, Marquess of Blandford, later fifth Duke of Marlborough, and George John, second Earl Spencer, has taken on mythical qualities. Blandford may have been the victor on the day, but ironically his opponent was to have the last laugh. In 1819 Blandford was forced, due to his extravagance, to sell the bulk of his collections through Sotheby's,² and Spencer snapped up the Boccaccio from his old rival for only £918 15s.

The auction catalogue was printed by William Bulmer, a printer more usually associated with fine printing, and was the first of a long run of auction catalogues he produced for the Pall Mall bookseller R.H. Evans. It was compiled by George Nicol, Roxburghe's agent of choice, who had cornered the market in arranging and cataloguing aristocratic libraries and who oversaw the auction itself. The London sale took place in two parts, the first starting on 18 May, comprising 9,353 lots and lasting forty-two days, the second on 13 July, 'some books found in closets above the library ... two or three articles ... then in the hands of the bookbinder ... several small books of little value',³ comprising 767 lots and lasting four days. The two sales combined raised the impressive figure of £23,341.⁴

The embellishment and memorialisation of the Roxburghe sale began the very day the Boccaccio sold. On the evening of 17 June 1812, at a dinner at St Alban's Tavern arranged for a party of bibliophiles by Thomas Frognall Dibdin, the Roxburghe Club was founded.⁵ Kristian Jensen has succinctly summarised the fervour which accompanied the sale, its reporting in The Times and in the regional press, and Dibdin's enthusiastic, indeed apoplectic, telling and retelling⁶ of the bibliographical event of the decade:

Dibdin glorified the marketplace in a laboriously sustained metaphor: it was the modern equivalent of the jousting field, that most aristocratic of meeting places.

B. Hillyard, 'John Ker, third Duke of Roxburghe' in Dictionary of Literary Biography, vol. 213: Pre-Nineteenth-Century British Book Collectors and Bibliographers, eds. W. Baker and K. Womack (Detroit: 1999) describes this as 'The less important of Roxburghe's two libraries' (p.201).

The market for luxurious books was a place for the public display, no longer of greed or profligacy, but of valorous aristocratic virtues, the weapons not being lances but money.⁷

The mythology surrounding the sale has come to epitomise the collecting of books as objects rather than for utility. Roxburghe never intended to read the Valdarfer Boccaccio – it was purchased for its rarity and for its place in the canon of literary history. Francis Douce's comments on the combatants in 1815 are telling:

A Boccaccio has lately been sold in this country to a mad collector of books who never reads them for £2200! Another was heard of at Milan and an opulent lord who had failed in the competition for the first sent an express to the owner of the latter, thinking that his insolent and indelicate offer of a large sum would ensure him the possession of the rare article. To his great mortification and to the honour of the Milanese proprietor the latter indignantly rejected the proposition and would not even allow the book to be seen.⁸

Despite its status as one of the best-known libraries of the bibliomania, the full history of the Roxburghe collection has yet to be written.⁹ In this respect it is not alone. The 'White Knights Library', the library of William Cavendish, sixth Duke of Devonshire, the monumental collections of Mark Masterman Sykes, Michael Wodhull and Richer Heber – virtually none of the major collectors or collections of the period have been systematically studied, and our preconceptions about these collections are still drawn almost entirely from Seymour de Ricci's 1930 Sandars Lectures. Why should this be? It certainly has something to do with scale; one of the defining features of the libraries of the bibliomania period is their monumental size, and they are a daunting research prospect. But there is more to our reluctance to tackle the period than the effort involved. At its heart lies precisely the phenomenon identified by Kristian Jensen, Arnold Hunt¹⁰ and others: the transition from collecting for content and 'use' to collecting for rarity or status, and our perceptions of that change. From Dibdin onwards it has proved easiest to categorise all early nineteenth-century libraries as products of the bibliomania, often with no more justification than the date of their creation. We are still guilty of propagating similar views to Douce: that the collecting of books as objects is somehow inferior to their collection as books to be read. If this is true of the first wave of nineteenth-century bibliophiles, then it is doubly true of the post-1830 collectors – not only are they disparagingly deemed 'connoisseur' collectors, but after 1830 the whole thing is considered somewhat passé. The time is ripe for a reassessment of this second great era in book collecting and a more nuanced and holistic approach to its libraries. Roxburghe and his contemporaries were bibliophiles, but the relationship between owner and book is significantly more complicated and interesting than the phrase suggests.

John Ker, third Duke of Roxburghe, was a contemporary and friend of George III. In his twenties a marriage was mooted between Roxburghe and Christiana Sophia Albertina, eldest daughter of the Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, but the potential marriage was unstuck by George III's engagement to Christiana's younger sister, Charlotte. Had Roxburghe and Christiana married, the elder sister would have become a subject of the younger – something etiquette deemed undesirable. The friendship with George III was undamaged. Indeed, Roxburghe rose through a series of court positions, ultimately being made a Knight of the Garter in 1801. The men shared both a love of books, and an agent, the bookseller George Nicol.

In Roxburghe's case, the passion for fine books may have been hereditary. The introduction to the 1812 catalogue states that some of the books offered for sale were amassed by the third Duke's predecessors, and in his entry in the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography Brian Hillyard cites a formative story, recounted by Sir Walter Scott:

Two famous collectors, Lord Oxford (either Robert Harley, first earl of Oxford, or Edward Harley, second earl of Oxford) and Lord Sunderland (Charles Spencer, third earl of Sunderland), were dining with Roxburghe's father when they talked about the 1471 Boccaccio, which the second duke duly acquired and, on a later occasion, produced for them. 'His son ... who never forgot the little scene upon this occasion, used to ascribe to it the strong passion which he ever afterwards felt for rare books and editions.'¹¹

Whatever its source, Roxburghe's urge to acquire was powerful. At the time of his death his library contained some 30,000 volumes, particularly rich in early English and Italian literature, drama, Shakespeariana, and French and European chivalry-romances, both printed and manuscript. He possessed relatively few incunabula, around 120, but these included some spectacular examples. Alongside the Valdarfer Boccaccio, Roxburghe had copies of the first printing of La Fiammetta and the beautiful 1476 Milanese printing of Il Filocolo. From Venice, Roxburghe owned copies of the Aldine editio princeps of Aristophanes and the Hypnerotomachia, and the 1469 de Spira Pliny; from Rome, the 1470 Sweynheym and Pannartz Cicero; and from Florence, Laurentius de Alopa's printings of Apollonius Rhodius's Argonautica (1496) and Callimachus' Hymni (1496). The collection was particularly strong in English incunabula, with twenty-three examples, including fifteen Caxtons.¹² The sixteenth-century English printing is equally spectacular, with some remarkable examples of black letter, including Pietro Martire Vermigli's A Brieve Treatise, Concerning the Use and Abuse of Dauncing (London: 1580?), and Richard Edwards' The Paradyse of Daintie Deuises (London: 1580), both recorded today in only two copies. Roxburghe also owned the collection of black-letter ballads which now bears his name, originally formed by Robert Harley, Earl of Oxford (1661–1724). The 1,341 broadside ballads now at the British Library are primarily seventeenth century and English. There are, however, examples from as early as 1567 and a number of rare sixteenth-century Scottish ballads.

In many respects, however, it is the less spectacular books which attract attention and which have the potential to inform in new ways: the tracts, the histories, the Scottish books, the 'Freethinkers', books on mathematics, municipal law and medicine. Relatively little archival evidence survives to chart Roxburghe's collecting, so the printed catalogue is a key source, the marked-up catalogue even more so. The record left by the unknown annotator of the copy in Cambridge University Library reads like a who's who of the bibliomania – booksellers, agents and collectors – and allows us to study the dispersal of this great library and, in microcosm, the world into which it was let loose.

12 Although somewhat overshadowed by the Boccaccio, the dispersal of the Caxtons raised similarly significant sums: the Duke of Devonshire paid £1,060 10s for a copy of the first book printed in English, Caxton's The Recuyell of the Historyes of Troye (Ghent?: David Aubert?, for William Caxton, c.1473–4), the book having belonged to Elizabeth Woodville, wife of Edward IV. Spencer, meanwhile, spent £116 11s on the c.1474–5 French text of the same work, and £215 5s on the then unique Caxton printing of Blanchardyn and Eglantine.

P R E F A C E.

IT seems necessary to say a few words prefatory to the present Catalogue, particularly to entreat, that those, who examine it, may not look for a Catalogue correctly classed.—The circumstances, under which it was made, rather required a classification of Buyers than of Books.—They were therefore thrown together, more to suit the Buyer than the Bibliographer.

To explain the many instances of this sort would be endless ; a few will suffice.—The different works of that eminent antiquarian Sir W. Dugdale, being uniformly bound, are placed together ; though, if properly arranged, they would be put under the different heads of Heraldical, Topographical, and Ecclesiastical Antiquities, &c. &c. The various works published by T. Hearne are exactly in similar circumstances ; and the complete collection of the classical authors, published for the use of the Dauphin of France, affords another instance. But what will strike every observer most, is, the frequent separation of the translations, from the authors' works, in the original languages. It must however be considered, that the buyers of Boccaccio, Bandello, and Giraldi Cinthio, in the original, form a very different class of purchasers from those of Painter's Palace of Pleasure, &c. All bibliographical criticism is therefore earnestly deprecated.

To account for the motley appearance of the Catalogue, it is perhaps necessary to say—That some of the scarcest books, that ever were exhibited for publick sale, will be found placed next to books of the most common occurrence, and certainly of small pecuniary value. For instance, among the Rituals;—the Festivale of Caxton, printed in two columns, of which no other copy is at present known, may be found classed with a small edition of the Common Prayer, of one shilling value.—Or the first editions of Suidas, Phavorinus, or the Etymologicon Magnum, of all which magnificent copies exist in this Library, may be found in company with a school edition of Schrevelius, thumbed to tatters at Eton. It should be therefore known, that this mixture of the valuable books, with those of small value, in a pecuniary point of view, and the numerous editions of the same author, ought not to be put to the account of the late noble Possessor; for, many years ago, his Grace, assisted by the person he usually consulted on such occasions, made a separation of this part of the Library; and sent all such, as were of little value, to some upper rooms.—In the present state of the property, however, no discretion is left: the whole is again mixed, to be disposed of by Public Sale, and the most trifling articles are, inserted, as well as those of the first importance.

It would be endless, and to the intelligent unnecessary, to point out all the very rare books that will be found in this Catalogue ; particularly in those branches of Literature in which the Possessor took delight. He idolized the talents of Shakspeare and Cervantes, and collected every thing that could illustrate their works. Early English Literature, and the Table Ronde, were therefore great objects of his research ; of the former, there are in this Library, not only the rarest, but, in point of condition, the most beautiful specimens that exist : and every one knows the extreme difficulty of finding early English books in clean condition.

In the poetical part of this class the Library is very rich. Few English Libraries possess both the editions of the celebrated Satire on Cardinal Wolsey, said to be written by Roy, or two different editions of the Paradise of Dainty Devises—both England's Helicon, and Parnassus—or both Webbe's and Puttenham's Art of Poetry. The most curious article in the Lyrical class of Poetry, however, is certainly the very large Collection of Ancient Ballads, in 3 volumes, folio.*

* This Collection of Ancient Ballads was originally formed for the celebrated Library of the Earl of Oxford, in the beginning of the last century ; and was then supposed to exceed the famous Pepys Collection at Cambridge. It was obtained, as well as many other curious articles, from the Harleian Library, by Mr. West, at whose sale it was purchased by Major Pearson, a gentleman

As to the Duke's Collection of the Table Ronde, his Grace was not satisfied with the printed editions, some of which are uncommonly rare ; he also collected many of them in MS. in magnificent volumes, on vellum, illustrated with beautiful illuminations. Among these curious MSS. are several translated by the celebrated Walter de Mapes, for the entertainment of his sovereign, Henry II. These literary labours, of so eminent a scholar of his day, are not mentioned by our own literary historians, Leland, Bale, or Tanner, who enumerate his works ; nor by Wolffius, Fabricius, who had made old English Literature his particular study. In his possession, with the assistance of his friend, Mr. Isaac Reed, the Collection received very great additions, and was bound in two large volumes, with printed title-pages, indexes, &c. In this state it was bought at Major Pearson's sale, by the Duke of Roxburghe. After the industrious exertions of two such skilful collectors as Major Pearson and Mr. Reed, the Duke did not flatter himself with ever being able to add much to the Collection ; but, as usual, he undervalued his own industry, for he soon added a great many to the two volumes, of which he wrote an additional index. Among these are some very scarce ballads ; one in particular printed by Lekprevik at Edin. 1570.

Finding that his success far exceeded his expectations, he determined to add a third volume to the Collection, which is now done. Among these new acquisitions there are some very rare ones, such as, Seven ballads printed at Edin. 1570. A ballad quoted in Hamlet, of which no other copy is now known to exist ; a very imperfect copy is printed by the Bishop of Dromore in his Reliques of Ancient Poetry, communicated to him, from the memory of a lady, by that celebrated Shaksperian scholar George Steevens.

Of so extraordinary a Collection as this is, it was thought proper to give some short account.

or Leyserus, who speak much of him, and preserve some of his poems ; particularly Wolffius, in his curious work, which he calls Lectiones Memorabiles, in two large volumes folio. This literary anecdote, however, is established by Rusticien de Pise, who lived soon after Walter de Mapes, and who translated several of the Romances in these collections of MSS. by order of Henry III.

Among them there is one, Le Roman de Tristan de Leonnoys, translated from a MS. preserved at Salisbury, by Luce, de Chatel du Gat. Of this literary character it is believed that nothing is yet known ; although every one knows the high rank that the family of Luce or Lucy, held in this country in those times. But a still more unknown person is mentioned as a translator of these Romances, in the preface to one of them, “ M. Gasses li Blons qui Parens fu de Roi Henry.” These anecdotes are only mentioned here, to induce Mr. Douce, or some other learned admirer of the early literature of this country, to investigate them.

These MSS. the Duke read with great facility, and with uncommon accuracy, as may be seen from a note written with his own hand, and inserted in the book it refers to, wherein he controverts the opinion of Adrien Baillet, author of the Jugemens des Savans, who had called it Le Roman du Roi Artus, whereas the Duke has shown it to be Le Roman du Roi Meliadus de Leonnoys.

Among the books printed by Caxton in this Collection, which, in point of condition, and cleanness, are unparalleled in any Library in the world, there is another instance, with what attention his Grace looked into his books. In the first book printed by Caxton, with a date, the Recuyell of the Historyes of Troye, fol. 1471, which is also the first book printed in the English Language, there is a sheet, (to use the technical expression of a printing-office) transposed, by which means the pages, not the leaves are misplaced. This the Duke has distinctly noted, with his own hand, in the book. In the same book is a very curious note, written on vellum, in an ancient hand, and modernized by the Duke, which shows that this copy belonged to Elizabeth Grey, Queen to Edward the Fourth. It begins thus: "This Boke is mine, Quene Elizabet, late Wiffe unto the most noble King Edward the forth." This lady was sister-in-law to Margaret Duchess of Burgundy, at whose command, and under whose patronage, Caxton says, this book was translated and printed. It is therefore not surprising, that Caxton presented so fine a copy of this book to his Queen, and the sister-in-law of his patroness.

There is one other instance of his Grace's critical collation, which, for the sake of truth, must be mentioned. All the legal antiquarians of a country, that cannot be accused of want of acuteness, agreed, that there were two editions of the Scottish Acts of Parliament, of the five first Jameses, and Queen Mary, printed at Edinburgh, by Lekprevik; the first dated the 12th of Oct. 1566, and the second the 28th Nov. of the same year. A mere mechanical knowledge of printing pointed out the improbability of a volume in folio being reprinted in Edinburgh, in forty-seven days; especially when the narrow compass of the press, in those times, was taken into the consideration. When this idea was first hinted to the Duke, he immediately began his collation; and being furnished, by Mr. George Chalmers, with a copy of what is called the first edition, he very soon discovered that the first and second were one and the same edition, some acts about religion, being cancelled in the second. These acts the Duke reprinted, to give to those gentlemen who only had what was called the second edition, which made their copies as perfect as those that are called the first edition. To these reprinted sheets a short advertisement was affixed, explaining the circumstance; to which the Duke insisted, upon the person who writes this Preface, to put the initials of his name.—He therefore takes the present opportunity of disclaiming any other share in the business, than the first suggestion.—The Duke's accuracy of collation alone established the fact.

The copy of these acts in this Library is invaluable. It contains, among other things, the original edition of Queen Mary's Acts, printed by Lekprevik, 1565

In the class of Italian Poets and Novellists, there are many very rare articles; among the Novellists is the first edition of Il Decamerone di Boccaccio, 1471. This is certainly one of the scarcest, if not the very scarcest book that exists.

It has now for upwards of 300 years preserved its uniquity, if that term is allowable. Of the same class of rare books may be mentioned Morlini Novellæ, a small 4to. The only copy known to be publicly sold, was at M. Gaignat's sale, where it was bought by the D. de Valiere for 1121 livres, at a time when scarce books sold cheap.

But of the rarity of the books, or the beauty of the copies in this Collection, it would be endless to speak. They indeed speak for themselves. What however is still more worthy of the attention of the learned Collector, are, the numerous small articles in this Library of unfrequent occurrence. The scarce and rare book, known to be such by all Collectors, a certain price will generally obtain ; but the smaller articles, that seldom occur, and are known to few, are only to be met with, on the dispersion of libraries collected with intelligence. To point out all these in this Library would be to repeat pages of the Catalogue. To explain what is meant, two instances may be produced, viz. ALCYONII DE EXILIO, 4to. Venet. 1522, and BIBLIOTHECA sive ANTIQUITATES URBIS CONSTANTINOPOLITANÆ, 4to. Argen. 1578. It has been said, that Alcyonius had in his possession the only existing MS. of Cicero de Gloria, and that, tempted to raise his literary fame at the expense of his honesty, he compiled from it his tract de Exilio, and then ruthlessly committed to the flames the invaluable relict of the great master of Roman eloquence. Upon this story the learned have held various opinions; Paulus Jovius and Paulus Manutius roundly assert it; but Menage attributes the theft to Philelphus, who, he says, disfigured the offspring of Cicero, and gave it to the world as his own, in his treatise De Contemptu Mundi,* But the investigation of this fact is not the present object; it is mentioned only to introduce another less known instance of literary fraud, in the second article mentioned, viz. Biblioth. Constant. &c. wherein it will appear, that while Antoine du Verdier, in his Biblioth. Française, was reprobating the plagiarism of Alcyonius, he was with great composure, taking to himself, without the slightest acknowledgment, the labours of Hartungus.

This tract, Biblioth. Constant., &c. pillaged by Du Verdier, is exceedingly rare: it was published by John Hartungus, at Strasburgh, in 1578, and consists chiefly, with the exception of a few notices of antiquities, of a Catalogue of MSS. in several private libraries at Constantinople; it has no other introduction than some flattering verses addressed by Geo. Calaminius, to the Editor. It therefore leaves the reader in ignorance by what means Hartungus came to the knowledge of these MSS. many of which have come down to the present times, while others are only known to us by scattered fragments, or by the melancholy reflection that they once existed. Such as the following ;

* For a farther account of these heavy charges against Alcyonius and Philelphus, vide Bayle, sub art. Alcyonius. Bayle, however, could not find a copy of Alcyonius's book, till after the publication of the first edition of his Dictionary, and then speaks of a copy being only lent to him by Bourdelotius.

That this little tract, consisting only of 24 leaves in small 4to. is of the most uncommon occurrence, will plainly appear, when we find that such scholars as Antonius Possevinus, Leo Allatius, and Petrus Lambecius, were unacquainted with it; and believed that the information it contains originated with Ant du Verdier.

M. de la Monnoye, who had proceeded far in preparing a new edition of Les Bibliothèques Françaises of Du Verdier and Croix du Maine,—afterwards completed and published by M. Rigoley de Juigny,—gives the following notice of his discovery of the fraud, in a Preface to the Biblioth. Constant. which is reprinted in M. Rigoley de Juigny’s edition, illustrated with notes.

“ Has Constantinopoleas Antiquitates, proximèque subjunctos Codicum Græcorum Catalogos, non primus, ut passim creditur, vulgavit
 “ Antonius Verderius. Graviter itaque falluntur
 “ celebres scriptores, Antonius Possevinus, Leo Allatius, Petrus Lambecius, alique id quidquid “ est, operæ Verderio securiùs tribuentes; non

“ annis Argentorati, apud Nicolaum Wyriot, 1578, “ minori formâ, quam vocant in 4to. editam,
 “ Joanne Hartungo nimium hic laudato deberi

When Literature was deprived of one of its warmest admirers, by the death of the Duke of Roxburghe, his Grace was in full pursuit of collecting our dramattick authors. And when his Collection of English Plays is examined, and the reader is informed, that he had only turned his mind to this class of literature for a few years, his indefatigable industry will be readily admitted. But what makes most of his old plays invaluable is the beauty of their condition.

Of the French Dramattick writers there are some very curious specimens, in Mysteries and Moralities ; particularly one MS. in two vol. fol. entitled La Vengeance de Notre S. J. C. beautifully written on vellum, and illustrated with a great number of exquisite drawings, representing the various scenes of the piece.

There are also some scarce modern Latin plays, in the Library, among which is a volume, that contains, along with another tragedy by the same author, Incendia seu Pyrgopolinices, Tragoedia, Thoma Naogeorgo Authore. This piece, though much in the style of collecting in France, is so very rare, that De Bure confesses he never saw it. The other piece of Naogeorgus in this volume, viz Mercator, &c. is also scarce, but not so scarce as the French translation by Jean Crespin, especially when it is accompanied with another piece entitled La Comedie du Pape Malade et tirant à la fin. The Duke's copy not only contains both these pieces, but another of the same class, by Theodore Beza, called Tragédie Françoisse du Sacrifice d'Abraham. This last piece was unknown to De Bure, and does not appear in Gaignat's, the Duke de Valiere's, or any other known collection.

In a Library where are so many scarce and uncommon books, the tracts may be supposed, in a certain degree, to partake of a similar scarcity, they are therefore recommended to the attention of the curious collector. They cannot be specified here. But what, above all other considerations, ought to recommend the books of this Library to the intelligent purchaser, is, that there are in it no books rendered imperfect, by that abominable practice of pillaging the works of different authors of their portraits, and other prints, that properly belong to them, in order to illustrate, as it is called, some trifling, stupid book of anecdotes, where the names of those authors are merely incidentally mentioned. It is melancholy to think how prevalent this practice is become, insomuch, that the best libraries are thus rendered imperfect. It may be truly called Literary Sacrilege.

It seems to be proper to say, that there is one class of books in this Catalogue, among which there are some very rare ones, that were not purchased by the late Possessor. They were collected early in the late century, when free-thinking was much the fashion. William Postel, Giordano Bruno, or Benedict Spinosa, could be no favourites with the late Proprietor, who only valued philosophical writers, in proportion as they improved the morals of mankind.

It cannot escape observation, that in this Library there are an uncommon quantity of Trials of Criminals, Detection of Witches, and other impostors. The Duke had a particular pleasure in exercising those discriminating powers, which he so eminently possessed, in tracing out the mazes, by which the perverted ingenuity of the human mind often attempts to impose upon the credulity of its fellow creatures.

Most of the circumstances, important to the purchasers of this Library, being now mentioned, it only remains to say, that the Books will be sold without the least reserve ; and that G. and W NICOL will, at the Sale, execute with fidelity any Commission, with which they may be intrusted.

 6092 Roman du San Graal et de Merlin, MS. magnifique sur velin, relié en 2 grands vol. fol. M.R. enrichi de 32 Miniatures, et les Lettres initiales peintes en couleurs rehaussées d'or. 38 17 Heber
 6093 Recueil des Romans des Chevaliers de la Table Ronde, MS. sur velin en 3 vol. fol. M. R. Cette Collection curieuse contient Le Roman du San Graal, Hist. de Merlin, Le Roman de Lancelot du Lac, &c. Ce Recueil est enrichi de 747 Miniatures avec les initiales peintes en or et couleurs. 18 15 Tripshook

A great part of the above two curious collections was translated into French by the celebrated WALTER DE MAPES, for the entertainment of his Sovereign, HEN. II. as we are informed by RUSTICIEN DE PYSE. This circumstance was unknown to LELAND, BALE, or TANNER, or any of our own Literary Historians, or indeed to WOLFIUS, FARRICIUS, or LEYSERUS, who speak of Walter de Mapes and preserve some of his poems, particularly WOLFIUS, in his curious work, which he calls LECTIONES MEMORABILES, 2 vol fol.

- 6094 Collection des Romans, contenant,—Le Roman de Brut d'Angleterre,—du Roi Artus—de Lancelot Galaad ou du Lac—du Giron le Courtois, &c. &c. &c. MS. sur velin, de l'an 1391, relié en 2 grands vol. fol. M. B. enrichi de 105 Miniatures, et les initiales peintes en or. 37 15 St. E. Bridges

This curious collection was made at the desire of HENRY III. of England, by RUSTICIEN DE PYSE, who translated those that had not been formerly done by WALTER DE MAPES, LUCE DU GAT, The BORRONS, or "Mess. Gasses li Blons qui parens fu le Roi Henry" (HEN. II.)

This last name is copied from the Proemium of one of the above Romances, and it is believed to be perfectly new to the literary History of England.

- 6095 Ci commence li Roumans du Bon Chevalier Tristan (de Leonnois.) MS. sur velin du 13me Siècle, grand en fol. enrichi de 89 Miniatures. 16 16 Buxton

This curious MS. was translated by LUCE de CHATEL DU GAT, of SALISBURY; a character little known to our Literary Historians.

- 6096 Le Roman du Roi Artus, fol. MS. très ancien sur velin avec 333 figures et combats peintes du même format de chaque page. Upon the authority of ADRIEN BAILLET the above title is given, but by a note inserted in the book, of the hand writing of the Duke of Roxburghe, it appears, that it is LE ROMAN DU ROY MELIADUS. 37 16 St. E. Bridges

It is unknown to all the Bibliographers, and is evidently printed with the same Types, with the same number of lines (viz. 31) on each page, and like the Translation, has neither Signatures nor Pagination. It may therefore be very fairly concluded that it was printed in the House where CANTON learned his Profession, as by his own account it was finished by the Author 1464. | |

ADVERTISEMENT.

THIS Supplement to the Catalogue of the Duke of Roxburghe's Library consists,

First, of some Books found in closets above the Library, since the original inventory was taken, and the Catalogue printed.

Second, of two or three articles, which were then in the hands of the bookbinder ; such as a complete set of the Scots Magazine, in 65 vols.

Third, Of the Libri Omissi, and several small books of little value, which got mixed with their wrong classes, from the great hurry, and the many hands obliged to be employed in cleaning and numbering the Books, in order to bring the Sale on this Season ; all of whom could not be supposed to be equally skilful in classification. These articles are now generally thrown into lots, because it cannot be supposed, the great attractions being gone, that the company will attend to a long series of sixpenny articles.

The Conductors of this Sale think it singularly fortunate, that, in the long exhibition and sale of this Library, no article of any consequence has been eventually lost or missing.--There is, indeed, one very vexatious exception, viz. the second part of the Black Acts.

When the Catalogue of the Library was taken, several years ago, the Case that contained both parts of these Acts, was so familiar to the person who made the Catalogue, from the long investigation and great pains that had been taken to ascertain some circumstances concerning these Acts, that it was not necessary for him to open the Case in order to take the title ; and he verily believes that the Case was never opened from the Duke's death till the Library was brought to sale. From these circumstances there are two conjectures that occur ; first, that the Duke had taken it down to Scotland to convince some of his friends there, who were still unbelievers of the New Notions ; or, that he had lent it to some person in town : if this last conjecture is founded, the Gentleman to whom it was lent will no doubt return it ; for which purpose this notice is principally given.

This Advertisement should not be concluded, without mentioning how much the Sale of this Library has been obliged to Mr. Evans, whose knowledge in his profession has been long distinguished, but who has now convinced the world, that he is equally well calculated to conduct a public as a private sale of books.

G. and W. NICOL.
